BLUEBEARD OF FRANCE IS EXECUTED

Remarkable Criminal of Modern Times Is Guillatined

SAYS NOT GUILTY

Pres. Millerand Rejects Last Appeal and Sentence Carried Out

VERSAILLES, France, Feb. 25.—"Bluebeard" Landru, most remarkable criminal of modern times, was executed on the guillotine today for the murders of ten women and a boy.

A large crowd, kept in check by 400 cavalrymen, turned out before daylight to witness the execution, which took place in a street in the center of the city.

Landru, who up until the last minute had expected a reprieve, met death stoically. Only at the last moment, when he was led out into the cold dawn and as the frame of the hastily erected guillotine loomed up in the half light, did the notorious slayer falter momentarily. He refused religious consolation which was offered him in his death cell early this morning and declined liquor and a cigaret.

"I am innocent. I have nothing to add. I hope someone will care for my children," were the last words of the man accused of many crimes, including white slavery, abduction, and the slaying of ten of his sweethearts and the burning of their bodies.

At the first streaks of dawn, the huge gates of the prison here swung open and Landru, who had asked that he might be shaved (his long black beard was cut off some time ago), "to please the ladies," was hurriedly led out. His shoulders were bared.

The slayer was conducted a short distance from the gates to the guillotine, which had been erected in the middle of a street running past the prison. He was pushed against an upright board and hastily tied.

The board fell forward and was shoved underneath the machine. The executioner jerked a cord, the knife with its heavy weights flick-

BUS LINE HEARING IS SET FOR MARCH 2

Glendale Granted Date by Los Angeles Board of Utilities

Appearing before the board of public utilities of the city of Los Angeles yesterday, C. D. Gulick, transportation expert of the city of Glendale, asked that body to set a date for the hearing of Glendale's application to operate a municipal bus line, carrying passengers between the cities of Glendale and Los Angeles. The date was set for March 2 at 2 p.m. The permit requested is one allowing the line to have a terminal in that city to take on and discharge interurban passengers. It is stated in the permit that local passengers in Los Angeles will not be carried.

The board of public utilities had asked that the Glendale hearing be postponed until after the Pacific Electric rate hearing before the state railroad commission, scheduled to be held on February 23 in Hollywood. This hearing has been postponed until March 20.

In asking that Glendale be given a hearing as soon as possible rather than wait until after the Hollywood hearing, Mr. Gulick indicated that the Glendale city council has never thought that the Hollywood hearing had any bearing on the bus proposition. He said that Glendale would request the permit no matter what the outcome of the hearing may be.

POLICE MAKE GOOD TRAFFIC ARREST

Arrested by Patrolman Lauritzen and Detective Sergeant Herda on a charge of reckless driving, Lee Koehler of Los Angeles is under $300 bail to appear in court on Monday morning. Koehler was arrested by the officers last night and taken to the police station where City Health Officer Dr. J. E. Eckles, after an examination, stated that the man was intoxicated.

TRAMP IS CHASED

A tramp, who intimated that it was the duty of the people of Glendal to feed him, was reported to the police yesterday. This tramp called at the home of Mrs. Elrod, 1651 Gardena avenue, and demanded that he be given food.

Police officers were detailed to search for the man, but were unable to find him as he had jumped a street car for Los Angeles.

How to Make Love Is Explained Tonight by Dr. Frank Crane

How to make love is the subject which Dr. Frank Crane discusses in his column on the editorial page this evening. He says it is a matter that has much to do with the happiness of the race and he quotes a correspondent as saying that it ought to be taught in the public schools.

Dr. Crane says nothing needs imagination like love, that it is necessary for man to accept woman as she is and not attempt to change her, nor criticize, nor regulate her.

"Respect her moods," he says. "Be frank, firm, courteous, and speak love. Don't take it for granted—tell her. Tell her every day. Give your feeling for her constant expression. Be good. Not too good, of course. But good enough to make a woman not afraid to give herself, her happiness, her honor, into your hands."

That's what Dr. Crane says of love.

Henry James speaks of unjournalistic conduct of certain newspaper men which he brands as outrageous, infringement on human rights.

James W. Foley has an excellent "Listening Post," and Don Francisco writes an appreciation of G. Harold Powell.

There are editorials and other features full on interest for your consideration tonight.

MAYOR'S EX-HOME TOWN HAS BOOM

Rock Island Is Going to Have Four New Buildings Worth $730!

Glendale is not the only town in the United States that is showing an increase in building this year. Mayor Spencer Robinson, Councilman Dwight Stephenson, and A. Stephenson, building inspector, are wearing the smile that won't come off. There's a reason.

These three gentlemen all came originally from the town of Rock Island, Ill., a town of 35,000 inhabitants, or from that vicinity. Yesterday A. Stephenson, building inspector, received a clipping from the Daily Times, published in Rock Island, stating that for the week just ended four building permits had been issued. The total of the permits was $730.

When told of the marvelous record of his former town, Mayor Robinson smiled and said, "Some town. I am glad I am from there."

Councilman Stephenson has not expressed his views yet, but his father, A. Stephenson, says he is more than ever proud to think that he is at present living in Glendale, "the fastest growing city in America."

BUILDING

Looking backward over the files of the Glendale Daily Press, now rounding out twelve months of publication, we have seen a brave effort to record the pulse of the tremendously active young city bounding on to metropolitan honors in the struggle of all cities for the power of numbers and wealth.

Records of sales, of new ventures in construction—building, concrete, material—are all written into the history of the city in the news columns of the city.

But this is not the record of the pulse of the city.

The pulse of the city is in the meetings of its people. In the seeking by united effort for the betterment of the living conditions in the charitable thought, in the personal loyalty of one man to another, in the unostentatious touch of the shoulder when that is needed. In these things pulsates the life giving vitality which makes a city a thing apart from its brick, stone, automobile traffic and paving.

In the files of the old papers is recorded the passing of some of the pioneers of Glendale men who attained great age, honored and revered for the aid they gave in their apprentice days to the moral structure of the city of Glendale.

Passing through gatherings of people that are accounted people of influence in the city, you will find the lines of high endeavor drawn by these old men and women run taut and true to the foundation laid so many years ago. It is well that it is so, for it is not given to all men to leave their real estate at home. That some are able to separate themselves consistently from their holdings and think of the community of Glendale first, means that we shall go forward as a city with a moral character and back bone holding forth where a wish bone is so often found.

We live such a short while that none of us are going to get so rich that we shall die disgraced, nor so poor that we shall not have a friend. These are the only dual evils in life.

The main thing is to rear a city founded upon squareness and charity and so fill it with the tradition of personal responsibility for the reputation of that community that it will be necessary for our descendants to give only the name of their home town to be received with the distinction due those descended from men and women who had the moral fiber to build such a city as Glendale.

Remember, the city is only sixteen years old. Regard it as your child of that age and teach it the way it should go.

FOUR POWER PACT PASSES SENATE COMMITTEE

Foreign Relations Orders Favorable Report on That and Other Treaties

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—The senate foreign relations committee today ordered favorable reports to the senate on the four-power Pacific treaty, the supplementary treaty excluding the Japanese homeland from the four-power pact, the naval limitation treaty and the treaty limiting the use of submarines and poison gas. This leaves only the Chinese customs treaty to be acted on by the committee. That will be done next week after Senator Pomerene, Ohio, has expressed his views upon it.

The Harding-Brandegee-Lodge compromise reservation to the four-power treaty was adopted ten to three and all other proposed reservations were voted down.

The vote on reporting the treaty to the senate also was 10 to 3.

The reservation adopted states that "the United States understands that under the statement of the preamble and under the terms of this treaty there is no commitment to armed force, no alliance, no obligation to join in the defense."

Senators Borah and Johnson, republicans, and Shields, democrat, voted against reporting the treaty. Kellogg, republican, and Williams and Pomerene, democrats, voted against the compromise reservation.

CARPENTER HITS NEW NOTE IN BUILDING

Builds Homes on Land He Owns and Fixes Price at Cost Plus Wages

Five houses sold from one advertisement in the Glendale Daily Press is the record of the advertiser who gave his address as 439 West Oak street.

To begin with, he had the goods to sell.

He advertised that he was the owner, builder and carpenetr.

He had built these five-room houses to be lived in and he knew they were worth the price he asked.

He knew it, he said, because the profit he had fixed on them was wages only. So it was a cost plus wages proposition he offered, in plani terms.

The advertisement had no sooner been read than he had inquiries. In a few days negotiations were closed on five houses.

All of which indicates the way for other mechanics who would rather work for themselves than for another. And it helps Glendale.

GLENDALE HOUSE HAS WANDERLUST

Found Camped in Front of Church Annoying Residents

FOUND—One house; owner unknown. Was found sitting in the middle of the street at the corner of Broadway and Cedar street, right in front of the Presbyterian church. Owner can have same by removing.

This ad could appear in the daily papers and be absolutely true. Street Superintendent Dewar has received telephone calls from several agitated residents of that district this morning, telling him that a party of house movers had left the house sitting in front of the church. The moving operations ceased last night and all was serene, as the property owners were of the opinion that the building would be removed today. But they were wrong. Today was declared a holiday by the house movers and the house is blocking the entrance to the church.

Street Superintendent Dewar this morning assured agitated inquirers that the entrance to the church would be clear by tomorrow morning if he had to take his "flivver" down, hitch it to the house, and do the moving himself.

JUBILEE SINGERS WIN APPLAUSE

Three Hundred and Fifty Attend Epworth League Concert

Despite the rainy weather conditions, there were about 350 out Friday night who enjoyed the concert given by the Jubilee Singers at the First Methodist church. This entertainment was given for the benefit of the Missionary enterprise of the Epworth League and will go mainly to purchase a dental chair for a missionary hospital in Sumatra. Those in charge of the evening's entertainment were Henry Malone and J. B. Clark.

The Jubilee Quartet is composed of first tenor, Mr. Smith; second tenor, Mr. Rose; baritone, Mr. Jones, second bass, Mr. Stewart, who is also the pianist.

The first number on the program was a series of four selections by the quartet. They were "Promised Land," "Carry Me Back to Old Virginie," which was arranged in a minor key and was something very unusual and striking; "Golden Slippers" and "My Good Lord Has Done Been Here."

Mr. Smith then gave a series or readings entitled "In the Morning" by Paul Lawrence Dunbar, "Encouragement" and "The Quarrel." The next numbers was a selection by the quartet, "All on a Sunday Morning" and "Women," which was followed by two violin solos by Mr. Rose, entitled, "Souvenir" and "Jueneffe."

The quartet then sang "When We Get to Heb'm" followed by "Hallelujah." Mr. Smith then sang two tenor solos, "Since You Went Away" and "Exhortation." Mr. Stewart then gave some beautiful piano selections, the first being "Regoletto" and the latter being some original variations of "Swannee River." The quartet gave a number entitled "The City Choir," followed by a baritone solo by Mr. Jones. The last nomber on the program was a combination of two songs being sung at once. They sang, "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep" and "You'll Remember Me."

This program was one that may not be heard at all times, and it was a very appreciative audience that enjoyed the evening.

These same singers will give a sacred concert at the church Sunday night in place of the regular evening service.

OBENCHAIN TRIAL TO FINISH WEDNESDAY

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25.—The state expects to complete its case against Madalynne Obenchain, charged with complicity in the murder of John Belton Kennedy by Wednesday, it was announced today by Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Asa Keyes. Monday the jury will visit the lonely Beverly Glen cottage, scene of the murder, and the mouth of Santa Monica canyon where Charles A. Sumnar, leading state's witness, will be asked to illustrate how he saw the car he says bore Arthur Burch to the scene of the murder.

The jury will not visit the Russell hotel where it is alleged Burch kept a death vigil over Kennedy, from a room opposite the latter's office. During yesterday's court session, the state by its testimony placed Madalynne with Burch across the street from Kennedy's office eight hours prior to the murder, and placed Burch in a roadster in Santa Monica canyon near Beverly Glen.

Marriage history and divorce records of the Obenchains were aired by the state. Through it all neither of the parties concerned faced the court.

HE THREATENS CAPITOL SOCIETY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—An obsession that the rich should be compelled to help poor children of the city caused George E. BONUS BILL NEARS VOTE IN CONGRESS

Unless President Blocks it Committee Will Bring Forth Measure

VETO IS EXPECTED

Measure Will Leave the Method of Finance to Be Decided

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Unless President Harding blocks it, the house ways and means committee is likely next week to vote for presenting a soldier bonus bill minus the definite means for raising the necessary funds.

Despite President Harding's opposition to a bill without the requisite money getting machinery, some congressmen were today talking of firing ahead and even passing the bill over his veto.

Harding has strongly indicated that he would veto a bonus bill which did not provide the means for raising the money necessary to pay it. If a bill comes out minus a money raising provision, it will be necessary subsequently for congress to vote an authorization for use of available treasury funds or to specify applications of British bond funds.

The sub-committee vote against the sales tax has not daunted the house in its determination to have a bonus.

Today there was also a strong sentiment for eliminating the cash bonus and putting in some more attractive insurance offers. The United States chamber of commerce bonus poll shows an overwhelming business sentiment against cash.

Some wanted a "selective bonus," aimed at giving cash to those actually in need thereof. In this connection, it was deemed significant that Representative Fish, member of the "soldier bloc," has such a proposal ready to present, and Representative Ansorge of New York has already brought forth a selective scheme.

Neither the insurance nor the selective plan, however, meets the wishes of American legion spokesmen.

GOVERNMENT TO CALL COAL MEN

Believed it Will Be Necessary to Force Settlement

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Acceptance of a government call for a conference of bituminous coal operators and miners to avert a nation-wide coal strike is practically assured, according to authoritative government observers today.

There is believed to be little chance that a settlement can be reached at such a conference, however. The real attempt to force a settlement will be made through state and district agreements rather than through a national arrangement such as is in force at present.

GLENDALE'S BONUS STAND APPROVED

Local Post's Telegram to Congressman Regarding Adjustment Supported

The stand of Commander James McBryde of Glendale Post No. 127 American Legion, regarding the passage of the adjusted compensation act, was adopted at the recent meeting of the legion commanders and adjutants of Southern California and when explained to the local post at its meeting last night was unanimously adopted by that organization. Mr. McBryde outlined his stand as follows: That the American legion should take no sides or make any recommendations as to how funds to finance the adjusted compensation should be raised. This is a matter that is up to congress. The legion should bend every effort toward assuring the passage of the adjusted compensation act and leave the matter of financing it to congress.

The meeting of the local post last night was a urely business meeting. Supervisor Henry S. Wright who was to address the meeting was unable to attend because of sickness in his family. The members discussed the raising of funds to ifnance the campaign that is being planned to assure the passage of the adjusted compensation act. It finally decided that the matter of raising funds should be turned over to the executive committee of the post and that body be given full power to act. Other business of a confidential nature regarding the finances of the organization were discussed.

H. W. Arbury, representing the Community Service, incorporated, addressed the legion and explained the plan for installing this service in Glendale. He stated that the plan was beginning to work out successfully in Long Beach and other cities of Southern California. The matter was referred to the executive committee for investigation before the post will take any action on the matter.

Captain Thomas D. Watson, chairman of the sick and relief committee was instructed to write a letter of thanks to Mr. L. C. Davis, president of the Grandview Memorial Park cemetery for the generous offer he made to ex-service men. The offer was that the Memorial Park cemetery would furnish a grave with perpetual care free to any Glendale ex-service man or his family who are not financially able to pay for it.

GLENDALE HAS NEW PLATING INDUSTRY

Glendale is to have a real nickel plating company. A new shop of this kind has just been opened at 120 South Maryland avenue, by the Glendale Nickel Plating company. They will do all manner of high-grade work in nickel silver, and copper plating, as well as expert automobile painting, Simonizing, etc. It's just another sign of Glendale's growth that men of such wide experience should choose this city in which to permanently locate.

THE EVENING STORY

THE APOLOGY

(Copyright, 1921, by W. Werner)

Any child would show more interest in choosing from a shelf of glass-eyed dolls than Mrs. Peters did as she glanced over the pale array of orphans presented for her inspection.

"I do not care to study their physignomy or know anything about their temperaments," she informed the matron, decisively. "I can take any boy here and mold his character to my desire, for I believe in early training—if it is firm. I merely wish to be sure of one with a good physique, as I intend him for a strenuous career."

It would be useless to describe Mrs. Peters, for no one would believe that the twentieth century could produce such a woman. The mid-Victorian novelists first pictured her. Not one of the urchins before her but had secretly prayed for a mother and a real home, yet now that they were facing this prospect not one but averted his eyes.

"I am ready to sign adoption papers," went on the applicant, "and have brought proofs and references to show my ability to give the child a good home and proper care. Which is your most perfect child, physically?"

The matron scanned the group before her. "Bud Hanson, come forward, please," she ordered.

Bud Hanson was a stocky six-year-old with freckles across his pug nose, and wide blue eyes.

"Bud has been here since he was a baby, and except for the measles and whooping cough has never been sick. He is a good, obedient boy—"

Mrs. Peters raised a depreciating hand. "Never mind that. My adopted son will be good and obedient," she said. "I will take the child, but shall never call him by that outlandish name. Next Sunday he shall be christened John Wesley Peters. But even before that time he shall be made acquainted with the life which I have arranged for him."

It was well that Bud was sturdy, and of stout heart, else what he found out in the days prior to that Sunday would have overwhelmed him.

His new mother, the relict of Professor John Wesley Peters, polaeontologist, had raised an anaemic son, John Wesley Peters II., to take up his father's interrupted work. John Wesley Peters II. was making ready to begin his research in the fossiliferous strata when bronchial trouble cut off his projected career.

Therefore, as a sacred duty, the bereaved mother picked out this orphan and brought him home to pursue the foreordained work of the lost John Wesley Peters II.

Bud, of sturdy Scandinavian ancestry, had been the victim of a system in the home, but it was spread out over many. Now he found himself the sole victim of a system which was much more intricate and rigid.

"Now, remember, John Wesley," his mother-by-law admonished, "for I do not wish to repeat, when the alarm rings, arise immediately, turn back the bed covers and draw the water in your tub. Take your cold plunge, rub off briskly, and go through your arm and chest exercises by your open window for five minutes. Then dress and be downstairs by 6:30. Bible study and prayer will be followed by breakfast at 7."

By the time this strenuous begining was ironed into the boy's mind, following a probationary week, full of do's and don't's, came the introductiton to the American public school system.

"Miss Granby, this is my foster son, John Wesley," announced Mrs. Peters. "He is to follow in the footsteps of my brilliant husband and son. You will find him obedient and amenable to discipline."

Miss Cranby surveyed the round-eyed youth before her and perceived that under circumstances the face might twinkle with mischief. Mrs. Peter's faith in her system of moulding the male youth was rooted in the success of her method with her tractable son. Miss Cranby's pessimism concerning small boys was the growth of years of experience with many, and no two alike. Her thin lips broke into a smile. "I dare say that we shall get on very well, Mrs. Peters. John Wesley, take the third seat from the front on the right," she admonished.

The head of John Wesley Peters III. spun like a top in the days that followed, what with rules at home and at school. His teaching had been primitive and he found himself in a modern schoolroom full of strange charts and appliances intended to simplify learning and to charm the student, but unalterably confusing to him.

His morning nap had always been interrupted by a "Git up!" which he understood perfectly, but he had to struggle with the command to "arise immediately upon the stroke of 6." In truth, about half of his orders were Greek and his work in carrying them out was after the blind fashion of the dog which is striving after the meaning of its trainer. On the whole he got on fairly well, by trying hard, and by ingenious guesses.

To Mrs. Peters he was an example of what training will do; to Miss Cranby he was a volcano, sleeping, but not dead, and she watched for the eruption which she felt sure would come. Left to himself he would not have fallen. The same might be said of Adam. John Wesley's Eve came to him in the form of Alice Rebecca, who, by virtue of having the bluest eyes, the largest hairbows—also blue—the prettiest clothes, and the richest father of any girl in the room, was queen of the May every school day, and on Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays as well.

Partly because of the everlasting and not wholly feminine desire to extend her sway, partly because she was tender-hearted, she helped John Wesley to translate Miss Cranby. It began when they were directed to give "A Concise and Clear Account of the Discovery of America." Through the fog which hid the world from him Alice Rebecca loomed, her blue eyes two heaven-sent beacons. "That means to tell it short and easy, so's any one could understand it," she whispered under cover of her geography.

For several days Alice Rebecca translated and it began to look to John Wesley as though some day he would understand what Miss Cranby meant when she spoke, and his tension relaxed a trifle.

Then the eternal triangle, which has all ages for its own, was formed by Milton Ray, who had been the favorite at Alice Rebecca's court and who did not intend to be superseded. Milton was wily beyond his year and hid his resentment, while with artless friendliness he sought John Wesley's confidence. Then he struck.

Now in Miss Cranby's room there was one forbidden sin. Each year it was committed in some form or other and each year by drastic methods it was stamped out—that was, changing Cranby to cranberry. Any one can realize the temptation offered youth. This yearly riot had been quelled before John Wesley came.

"I notice that you always say Miss Cranby, John Wesley," remarked Milton Ray one evening as he walked chummily beside the boy. "Don't you know that her name's Cranberry?"

"N-no," stammered John Wesley, abashed. "I thought every one said Cranby."

"Well, us kids are awful careless in our talk," confessed the wily one, "but teacher likes to have us speak up loud and plain. I thought I'd tell you."

And if a bomb had burst in the quiet of the schoolroom the next day it would have been no more startling than when John Wesley Peters, rising to answer a question, plainly addressed his teacher as "Miss Cranberry."

The ruler came down sharply on the desk. Miss Cranby's face darkened. "John Wesley Peters, what do you mean by calling me that?"

The boy quailed, blanched, but held his ground. "Why, ain't it your name?" he asked innocently.

Again the ruler crashed. "So you add impertinence to insubordination, do you? Take your seat and remain after school. I shall attend to your case then."

Beyond noticing that Milton Ray walked down the hall, past the open door, with Alice Rebecca, John Wesley heeded nothing until the last struggle was gone. He was wallowing in a slough of not understanding. "Impertinence" and "insubordination" seemed terrible words. What did they mean? On a whole he would have preferred a whipping to the lecture that Miss Cranby delivered. He did not understand it, but by the big words in it he knew himself to be a desperate character, so he sat mute before her, unable to open his mouth in explanation.

"There are two courses open to you, John Wesley," she concluded. "Apology or expulsion.' You have your choice."

The boy did not reply. "Apology," "expulsion." He raised mystified eyes to Miss Cranby.

"You may have two days in which to decide what you will do. You may go."

John Wesley failed to eat his supper and repeated the offense at breakfast. Copious doses from a bottle of medicine inherited from the other John Wesley did not restore his appetite. Two days he sat in his place in school, pale and downcast, ignored by his teacher and the object of round-eyed curiosity on the part of his mates. Then Miss Cranby apparently aware of his presence for the first time, called him to her desk. "John Wesley"—her manner was magisterial—"you have had two days in which to decide between apology or expulsion. Which will you do, apologize or take your books and go home?"

Mrs. Peters had broughtt Wesley to school to stay, so he dared not go home. Apologize must be pretty bad, but he was going to dig skeletons among savages, who might kill him, anyway. This could not be worse than that.

"Well, which will you do?" rasped Miss Cranby.

John Wesley hoarsely proclaimed his own sentence. "I-I'll 'pollogize!"

There was a lessening of the breathless tension in the room. John Wesley braced himself.

"Very well," answered Miss Cranby promptly, with something of relief in her tones. "Your apology is accepted. Let this be the last I hear of it. Go to your seat and study your lessons.!"

So that was all! The dreadful "apologize" was nothing but a word!

Dumb with bewildermen, he stumbled down the aisle and sank weakly into his seat. John Wesley Peters III—late Bud Hanson of the home—gazed round-eyed into space and wondered.

Your Community

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers.)

Are the people in your community, as a general thing, genuinely interested in public affairs? Or are they so absorbed in their own concerns that they give little thought to civic problems and issues?

Is their prevailing spirit one of hearty neighborliness? Do they cooperate to maintain a pleasant community life?

Are they free from the snobbishness of wealth? Are they tolerant in regard to religious questions? Do they frown upon petty gossip and all scandal-mongering?

Have they a proper pride in the appearance of their homes and streets, so that the neighborhood maintains an attractive appearance? Or is their attitude in regard to this—as in regard to compliance with public health regulations—one of indifference?

These are questions of more than academic interest to you. They bear directly on your welfare, and in especial on the future well-being of your children.

It goes without saying that you wish to see those children grow to be efficient and worthy men and women. Do not forget that the kind of community in which they are reared is bound to play a part in determining the kind of men and women they shall be.

According to some good authorities the conjoint influence of the family, the school and the community actually outweighs by far any other factor in the development of human beings, not excluding the factor of personal heredity. Or, as it has been put by that famous savant, Sir Edwin Ray Lankester:

"The heredity with which civilization is most supremely concerned is not that which is inborn in the individual. It is the social inheritance which constitutes the dominant factor in human progress."

By social inheritance is meant the social setting—the teachings and traditions, the manners and customs, the prejudices and prepossessions of the family and the community. From his social setting, in the plastic years of youth, the individual derives ideas which, because of the tendency of all ideas to pass over into action, shape his behavior, first as youth, later as man.

Do not think that if the life of your community is an inferior life your children will be unaffected by it. They are certain to absorb something of its spirit, to their lasting hurt. Whereas, if it is a superior life the benefit to them will be equally lasting.

And now ask yourself whether, as a member of the community, you are helping to raise or to lower community standards. Put to yourself regarding yourself the same questions I have put to you regarding the community as a whole.

As a part of the community you necessarily exercise part of the community influence on your neighbors' children as well as your own. Necessarily you help to give those children beneficial or hurtful ideas. Thus you unconsciously help to mould their characters, to determine the quality of their citizenship.

Have you fully appreciated your responsibility in this respect?

BURBANK WOMAN'S CLUB ENTERTAINS

More Than Fifty Guests from Los Angeles District Present

More than 50 guests were entertained Tuesday by the Burbank Women's club at reciprocity day celebration. Many prominent club women of the Los Angeles district of the Women's clubs federation were present to enjoy the hospitality of the local club, which had made elaborate and highly successful efforts to provide an inspirational meeting and a pleasant social event.

As the Women's club rooms were too small to accommodate the number expected to be present, the affair was given in the Methodist church. Here were set the long dining tables, which were beautiful in the national colors, commemorating Washington's birthday. Following a delicious luncheon, after-dinner talks were made by a number of district and state officers and several of the local club members. Mrs. H. E. Woods, president of the Burbank club, opened the speech-making hour with a short talk in which she graciously welcomed the guests. Mrs. J. C. Urquhart of Los Angeles, district president, spoke in her opening remarks of the inspiration to be obtained from the reciprocity day meetings at the various clubs, but said that of all which she had attended, "this is the most beautiful one yet and I find the spirit is fine in Burbank."

Mrs. J. S. Frewhella of Los Angeles and vice-president of the district, responded to a call of her name. She spoke especially of the unusual spirit of co-operation among the clubs of the San Fernando valley and suggested that all others would do well to pattern. Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, past district president and first vice-president of the California federation of music clubs, made an interesting talk in which she spoke of being from the San Fernando valley and thus holding a warm feeling for this section. In speaking of the development of music among the people, she stated that the last week in March would be designated as music week, and all the clubs and churches and similar bodies would be urged to co-operate in observing this time for the further cultivation of the love for music.

Among others who made short addresses were Mrs. C. A. Wiley of Long Beach, state auditor; Mrs. Charles McKelvey, district parliamentarian; Mrs. Pehr, district chairman of community service; Mrs. Sterling of Long Beach, district reciprocity chairman, and Mrs. Delmont Locke, who was the toastmistress.

When the talks were concluded, the Choral club octet gave two numbers which were beautifully rendered and well received. This was followed by a little play, "The Teeth of the Gift Horse," the cast of which was composed of Mesdames Locke, Kent, Fillback, Walter Fisher, Wilson, and Johnson, and was directed by Mrs. Charles Fischer.

SUMMER SCHOOL GAINS INSTRUCTOR

Three French courses of particular interest to be offered at the state university summer session in Los Angeles, will be given by Professor Guerard of Texas. One will deal with Voltaire, his life, art, thought and influence; another will give a survey of the socil background of modern French literature; a third will be primarily for teachers. All of the discussions will be carried on in French.

Professor Guerard graduated from the University of Paris in 1898. Since that time he has traveled extensively, acted as instructor in Williams college, Stanford, University of Chicago, and Rice institute, and is the author of what are considered the most authoritative books on France of the Middle Ages. He served in both the French and American armies, and during the world war was first lieutenant in the infantry, intelligence section.

Marriage gets to be an old story about the time the husband runs out of new stories to tell her about himself.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

WILLIAM W. BOEHME

William W. Boehme, member of the American Legion, passed away at 8 p. m. Tuesday, at his home, 244 North Belmont street, after a long illness.

It was during the war that Mr. Boehme was a victim of influenza while at a naval training station in the state of Washington. He later contracted tuberculosis. About two weeks ago he was taken to his home from Thornycroft sanitarium, where he had been for about a year.

He leaves to mourn his death his mother, Mrs. Ola Boehme, of Glendale. He was born in Grandburg, Tex., August 8, 1889, and at the age of five years was taken to Seattle, Wash., where he attended school. Mr. Boehme was a member of Glendale Post No. 127, American Legion, having been transferred about a month ago from the Seattle post.

Funeral services are being held today from the Little Church of the Flowers at Forest Lawn cemetery, the American Legion having charge of the services.

Chaplain Harley G. Preston is officiating. Pall bearers have been selected from among the American Legion members and a firing squad from the national guard.

Some men avoid a disagreeable task by persuading themselves that its accomplishment is an impossibility.

YEOMEN HAVE BIG ANNUAL FROLIC

Carnival Spirit Undampened by Rain as They Gather to Gambol

The prevalent rain might dampen some things but it had no effect to dampen or take away the carnival spirit that reigned at the opening of the Yeomen's fourth annual indoor frolic Friday night at 1500 South San Fernando road.

There is no admission charged and many availed themselves of the opportunity to enjoy free the galaxies of the frolic.

To occupy your attention and to give all a chance to have some fun there are such things as Cupidland, Dart the Dart for candy, Country Store, Spin Wheels, Novelty Booths, Princess Zela, and among other attractions, candy land for the kiddies, and according to Messrs. Bob Danner, John Lawler, Tom Ward, Herbert Crane, H. Schaeffer, W. T. Warren, for 10 cents you may take home most anything from a stock of gum to a sack of flour if you are lucky and you have to be there in order to find out.

An orchestra of merit, including violin, saxophone and drums, is jazzing most of the time and the young people certainly enjoyed dancing to such Glendale favorites as Walter Hibbert, Bub Merle.

The eats and hot dogs are a big feature on the carnival program. Miss Dorothy Danner, who has charge of this, had a busy night trying to keep pace with the demand. Everyone visiting the Yeomen's hall receives a free ticket, entitling them to a chance on a big, beautiful reading lamp, donated by the Brenkman Electric company, and tonight this lamp will be given away to the lucky person, and in addition there are many beautiful pieces of ladies' wearing apparel, all hand-made and donated by friends of the lodge to be given away and the kiddies all have a chance to win a big mechanical toy and a lot of candy.

The hall is attractively arranged with flags and bunting to give the effect of a regular old-time fiesta and those who visit are sure to have some fun. So tonight bring yourself and the kids and have a good, jolly time as guests of the Yeomen at 1500 South San Fernando road.

00 ENTERTAINED AT CASA VERDUGO

The Casa Verdugo Methodist church, of which Rev. Livingston is pastor, is finishing its basement and equipping a kitchen and dining room, not only for its own needs but to serve as a social center for that portion of the city. As a benefit for this fund the ladies of the church served a fine dinner Friday evening at which covers were laid for 300. No program was attempted; it was simply a pleasant, informal social occasion.

ATTERY SERVICE NOVELTY IS HIT

The Glendale Battery & Ignition service, which has just opened its doors at 120 South Maryland, has hit upon a novel way of introducing itself.

The members of the firm are giving to every motorist inspecting their well-equipped plant during the next week a card bearing a number. On the last day of the week, when a drawing will be made, the one holding the lucky number will receive a U. S. L. battery, free.

Glendale must surely encourage such industry and "go get 'em" spirit.

Expect to Be Head of Newest Republic

Dr. Julio Bianchi, who during the past year was Guatemala Minister to the U. S., will probably be the first president of the world's newest nation, the Republic of Central America, recently formed by Guatemala, Honduras, and Salvador. This photograph was made immediately after Dr. Bianchi received news of his election as Guatemala delegate to the Federal Council of the new republic.

IN MEMORIAM

MISS VESTA JUNE JANES

Miss Vesta June Janes, who passed away on February 13, was the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Janes, of 1502 Rock Glen avenue. She was a native daughter of the Golden state, and was born in San Jose. She has resided in Glendale for the past three years.

Miss Janes was of a very artistic temperament, and never tired of watching the endless panorama reflected in the mountains that rose in majestic grandeur close at hand, with their wealth of verdure, shrubery and wild flowers. The pretty valley, with its air of contentment and peace, appealed strongly to her and was called by her "Peaceful Valley."

She was passionately fond of nature's bloom, and her picturesque little home, surrounded by beautiful ferns and flowers, was a source of constant delight to her. The ferns and flowers still remain, but the gentle little lady who took so much pride in them and loved them so well has been removed to a fairer and better world.

Her numerous friends, both in Glendale and Los Angeles, sent bouquets of the choicest bloom, and her grave in Forest Lawn cemetery was hidden beneath a canopy of the fragrant blossoms that in life she loved so well.

Her body rests where flowers fair
Keep guard around her tomb,
But her pure spirit rests up there,
'Mid heaven's eternal bloom.

CERRITOS LOSES TO INTERMEDIATE

Basketball Game Ends With Close Score Made at the Whistle

The basketball game between Intermediate and Cerritos avenue school teams which was to have been played Friday afternoon on the grounds of the Colorado school was transferred to the girls' gym of Glendale high and ended in a score of 14 to 12 in favor of Intermediate.

Itwas an exceedingly close contest, the victory being in doubt until the whistle blew for the finish. Cerritos jumped into the lead in the first quarter, scoring seven points to Intermediate's one. From that time on it was an uphill fight with Intermediate constantly gaining. In the last quarter Intermediate tied the score, then got ahead and in the last two minutes of play led by one basket.

It was apronounced the most equall ymatched game of the series and the boys of both teams played a very fast game. It would be hard to single out for commendation any special players when all did so well, but among the boys of Cerritos who showed to advantage were Louis Moniot, Wilber Davis and Charles Boring. Intermediates in the foreground were: Bob Copeland, Allen Lovell and Ed Carver.

Next week the boys of the 7th and 8th grades will take up track work.

ROLLER NOVELTY AT THE GLENDALE

The Sensational Turners offering "A Rolling Sensation," a roller skating novelty, are included on the new bill that is scheduled to open at the Glendale theatre tonight. This is a corking good act and one that has been a big success. Edward W. Ames is "the man that talks faster than a woman." He has a great comedy act that is crammed full of laughs. Roberts and Fulton present a "singing and talking oddity." It is a gem of its kind and has been a big success everywhere. DeComa & Bertilli are "whirlwind acrobats" who introduce many thrilling feats and some delightful new stunts. The Follies of '61 is the feature offering of the program. It is presented by four old veterans, survivors of the civil war, and includes singing, talking, dancing, comedy and music. It is a genuine novelty.

Guy Oyster, Samuel Gompers's brilliant secretary, was talking to a Washington reporter about a strike. "The employers take the usual stand," he said. "And the usual stand of the employer reminds me of the farmer who never rose till 9 oclock in the morning, always saying to his wife when the alarm clock struck 4, 'You get up and milk and feed the stock and do the chores, my dear, while I lie here and think out the days work.'"

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.—Adv.

BLUEBEARD IS EXECUTED

ered down with a thud, Landru's head toppled off into a basket, and the execution was over—all in the space of a few seconds.

At 4 o'clock this morning, shivering in the darkness, workmen, laboring by the old-fashioned candle lanterns, erected the guillotine beside the street car tracks.

Nearly 100 journalists, French and foreign, were admitted inside the police cordon. A great crowd gathered outside, beseeching to be allowed within the lines. A short time before the execution the crowd had to be separated to allow a street car to pass. The crowd which surrounded the police cordon were unable to see the execution, but heard the thud of the knife.

A closed wagon drew beside the guillotine the minute the knife fell and the body was quickly transferred to a basket and taken to the prison morgue, where it will be claimed by Landru's family.

During his last few minutes in the prison Landru tore up several documents which he handed to his lawyer. The lawyer was only able to say: "Courage!"

Landur replied: "Thanks; I've always had that."

The condemned man walked barefooted from the prison doors to the guillotine.

A remarkable feature of Landru's trial was that none of the bodies of the women he was supposed to have murdered were ever recovered. He was defendd by recovered. He was defended by brilliant lawyers and given every opportunity to prove his innocence. His final conviction was based upon almost overwhelming circumstantial evidence.

Landru's cynical attitude and his joking during his trial was said to have militated against him and the jury found him guilty. After several attempts to secure fresh trials and reprieves, hope was only last night abandoned by his counsel.

Over 50,000 typewritten pages contained the dossier of the famous criminal.

RAIN, PROPHESIED, GLOOMS ROYAL WEDDING DAY

Fluid Day Indicated for Princess Mary's Nuptials Causes Worry

LONDON, Feb. 25.—Snow and rain were predicted for Princess Mary's wedding day by the official forecaster.

Wedding guests who have procured gorgeous costumes for what promises to be the most colorful pageant of modern times are downcast by the announcement that a storm, with sleet, snow and drizzles will strike London next Monday or Tuesday. The royal wedding will be in Westminster Abbey Tuesday.

A magnificent semi-private display of part of the wedding gifts received by the princess was held yesterday in Buckingham palace.

Jewels valued at more than $5,000,000 were on display and these were only a small part of the total gifts which have been received. A spacious room at the palace was crowded with rare treasures. Diamonds, sapphires, emeralds, pearls, silver and gold articles and priceless antiques vied for attention.

Countless tiaras, necklets, bracelets and brooches have been sent from every land. King George gave the princess three magnificent pieces with sapphires and diamonds intermingled. Queen Mary gave a brooch, a huge sapphire surrounded by diamonds. The Prince of Wales sent a sapphire and diamond bracelet. Queen Alexandra's gift was a necklace of pearls and emeralds. The Duke of York, Princess Henry and George gave a sapphire and diamond ring.

Mrs. Asa Hall of 636 North Louise street was one of the hostesses at a delightful luncheon given by the West Adams Guild of the Immanuel Presbyterian church, Los Angeles on Thursday at the residance of Mrs. D. J. Wilson, 1436 Crenshaw boulevard, Los Angeles.

Mrs. V. W. McCord of 224 North Central avenue will be the over-Sunday guest of Mrs. Ray Huff of Hollywood.

Mrs. C. E. King and Miss Muriel Worth of Chicago are the week-end guests of Mrs. F. J. McCann of 317 West Maple street.

Mrs. A. P. McBoyle of 369 Milford stree is confined to her home on account of illness.

Dr. Julius Soper has been quite seriously ill of grippe. Dr. Soper is now well enough to sit up and about the house part of the time, but his wife is still confined to her bed with the same illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Blumenthal of 722 North Central avenue are leaving Sunday for San Diego on a combined business and pleasure trip. They will be gone several days.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Hudson of 716-A South Brand boulevard have moved to 640 North Central avenue.

Mrs. Albert Cotton and sister, Miss Maude Cookman of Cancouver, B. C., were the dinner guests Friday night of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Hall, 636 North Louise street.

for this section, and had sufficient vision to see that some day, on the spot where Glendale now stands, there would be a city of 50,000 or more people—seeing a mental picture of greater Glendale.

Dr. Russell is an osteopathic physician. After several years of successful practice she was compelled, on account of ill health, to retire from active work. She came to Glendale to rest and was soon on the road to recovery.

As health was regained, Dr. Russell became more and more interested in public affairs in Glendale and Southern California, her magnetic personality and undeniable ability winning for her many prominent local and state offices.

She was for several years chairman of the civics committee of the California federated women's clubs. She organized and was first president of the Glendale Parent-Teacher federation, and was chairman of legislation and civics of a number of other organizations. Dr. Russell is now chairman of the civics committee of the chamber of commerce, and is national chairman of legislation of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations. For several years she was state president of the California Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations. She has been the official representative of Glendale and Los Angeles at many important meetings on public projects, including the national and international irrigation and reclamation congress, held in El Paso; the convention of the League of the Southwest; the fall hearing of the Boulder Creek dam project in San Diego, and many others, these affording her, a nation-wide acquaintance which will prove extremely valuable in the business in which she has just embarked.

WAR MOTHERS AID VETERANS' FAMILIES

prospective breaking up of the family of this wounded ex-soldier who had served his country only too well, the War Mothers were at once stirred to action. The question was brought up at a meeting of the organization and opinion was unanimous that instead of distributing the children the little family should be kept together and assisted until the father is able to provide for his loved ones.

To think is to do, with these energetic matrons, and as a result of that meeting a bungalow in the rear of Ralph's grocery on West Broadway has been secured and furnished for their comfort, and the War Mothers will follow this up with a campaign to find the right kind of a job for this patriot who took part in some of the biggest drives of the war and who paid the penalty as a patient in various hospitals and sanitariums, the last being Thornycroft, from which he has just been discharged as cured. His application for vocational training cut him off from his war allowance and left him helpless to provide for his family. His wife is bravely carrying the burden to the extent of her ability and earning about $35 a month, but that is quite inadequate for the needs of herself, her husband and their two children, one three and the other two years of age.

As usual, the War Mothers are right, and the opening gun of their campaign to find work for this deserving veteran is being fired today in the following appeal, which it is hoped will reach the mark and bring a job to this man, who is especially well equipped for service as a chauffeur:

"Have you a job, no matter how small, you can give an ex-soldier? Something, perhaps, your have planned to do yourself, the giving of which would help save the self-respect of our boys, who do not want charity? The Lester Meyer chapter of War Mothers urges you to keep this matter in mind and in case you have something in this line, please telephone Glendale 1324-J. or 1173-J."

Clothing for babies two and three years old could be used to advantage for the babies in this home, one of whom is pictured herewith, or clothing which could be used by the parents. Any one wishing to join hands with the War Mothers and help can do so through Mrs. J. B. Sherwood, Mrs. Samuel Dick, Mrs. J. N. McGillis, all of whom have telephones, or through Capt. Thos. D. Watson, chairman of the Legion relief committee.

Did you ever notice how a meek little woman begins to assert herself about twenty-four hours after marriage?

A girl thinks the wisdom of Solomon insignificant when compared with the smart sayings of her first beau.

NORTH BRAND BUSINESS PROPERTY AT ONE-FOURTH VALUE AS COMPARED TO SIMILAR PROPERTY IN OTHER LOCATIONS
Glendale is "V" shape, expanding to the north. The best residential district is north of Colorado, therefore, the business district will move northward. Glendale is building towards the mountains, like Hollywood.
We believe the "wise" investor, who buys North Brand NOW at the low price of $150 to $300 per front foot, will more than double his money in the next two years, as similar properties in Hollywood and other successful locations, have recently sold for more than four times the price quoted above.
We are exclusive agents for 25 (1250 feet) North Brand business lots, including some very desirable corners.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB MEETS

Friday was the day reserved by the music section of the Tuesday Afternoon club for the entertainment of state officers of the Federation of Music Clubs, of which the section is a member. It was entertained at the home of Mrs. C. L. Marlenee, the curator. Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, vice president, was the only state officer present, but she brought the greetings of the organization and several letters from other officers were read.

Mrs. Jones dwelt on the chief aim and purpose of the federation, which she said is to promote American music and aid American artists. She commented appreciatively on the fact that the music section was the first Glendale group to join the state organization and led the way for orchestras, choruses and glee clubs that have since joined. She also spoke of the catholic nature of the federation, which takes in all classes and men as well as women. Referring to the music week which Los Angeles is to have the third week in March, she urged individual effort to swell membership because of the big things planned to promote the musical interests of Southern California at that time.

A communication was read from Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, president of the club, expressing regret that illness prevented her presence at the meeting.

Delicious refreshments were served at the close of the afternoon to the 38 guests present, and a charming pink and white color scheme was carried out in the floral decorations in which white narcissi and pink carnations were used, and the artists who furnished the delightful program of the afternoon were remembered with bouquets of sweet peas.

The singer was Elia Faggioli, tenor, who interpreted exquisitely: "But Lately in Dance" (Alensky), "Ave Maria" (Schubert), "For All Eternity" (Maschroni), "Melodie" (Tosti), and an encore number, Mrs. Faggioli presiding at the piano.

Miss Gertrude Champlani played the sextette from Lucia and as an encore "Minuet Antique" (Lebec). Violin numbers by Mrs. Dorothy Welcome included "Song of "India" (Rimsky Koraskow), "From the Canebrake" (Samuel Gardner), and "The Land of the Sky Blue Water" (Cadman). She was accompanied by Miss Champlain.

A very sweet little poem, written by the aunt of the hostess, "Miss Josephine Myers," was read by Miss Eva Daniels.

While sickness kept away a good many members who would otherwise have been there, it was one of the most successful meetings of the section.

MOTHERS GIVE BOYS AND GIRLS PARTY

One of the prettiest affairs ever given in Glendale was enjoyed by about forty boys and girls of the younger set at Odd Fellows' hall, Friday evening. It was a "Washington" dancing party at which several of the mothers, viz. Mrs. C. E. Houston, Mrs. C. C. Cooper, Mrs. A. S. Chase, Mrs. R. M. Brown, Mrs. Taylor of Eagle Rock, Mrs. Thomas Wood and Mrs. Chas. B. Guthrie were hostesses. It was also the first of a series of parties for the group at which mothers will act as hostesses and which will otherwise be well chaperoned, and close at a reasonable hour. The next one will probably be given on St. Patrick's night.

Red streamers and flags were used in decoration; fine music was furnished by a local organization, the Jerry Parker orchestra; ice cream and cake were enjoyed at the close of the evening, the boys serving the girls.

The program included four favor dances when red caps, flags, candy favors and pencils were dispensed.

Mr. and Mrs. V. M. Hollister assisted the hostesses, Mr. Hollister having general supervision of the floor, and a group of matrons was present, which included Mesdames Frazee, Allen, White and Smits.

The invitation list included Dorothy Houston, Evelyn Hunt, Emma Laura Cooper, Margaret Longley, Lois Naudain, Margaret Brown, Katherine Stofft, Doris Osmon, Marie Hearnshaw, Sarah Allen, Winifred Parker, Caroyln Ayars, Cecil Chase, Valera Trimmer, Sarah Chandler, Marcella Webb, Dorothy Finns, Catherine Guthrie, Thomas Wood, Burton Kuntzner, Billy Empey, "Buzzie" Roach, "Junior" Richardson, Boyd Taylor, Stillman Chase, Bert Frazee, Ernest Pomeroy, William Shinner, Jack Huntington, Fred Hand, Allan Pollock, Ralph Van Hoorebeke, Harold Jones, Douglas White, Everett Smits, Carlton Walker, Frank Thompson, Eugene Wernette, Williard Roberts.

Quite a number of these young people are ill of the prevailing epidemic, the list of absentees including Marcella Webb, Cecil Chase, William Shinner, Burton Kuntzner, Fred Hand and Carlton Walker.

BAPTISTS HOLD FAMILY PARTY

Tri Mu Class of Church Draws Big Attendance to Its Gathering

Two hundred and fifty members of the big Baptist family of Glendale gathered at the First Baptist church last night to enjoy the "family party" that was given by the Tri Mu class of the Baptist Sunday school. Considering the threatening weather, the attendance was considered remarkable and it showed that the longer the rainy season continues in Glendale the more daring the local people become.

At this affair the members of the Tri Mu class were hosts to their friends. The party was arranged to show that the Tri Mu is on the map. The crowd began assembling early and by 8 o'clock the auditorium was comfortably filled.

The program was opened with a number of selections by an orchestra composed of members of the local Elks lodge and led by Rene Olin. These numbers served to put those present "on their toes" and right in the spirit of the remainder of the program.

The invocation was given by Rev. E. E. Ford, pastor of the church, after which he gave a short address of welcome to the guests.

"Two years ago," said Rev. Ford, "the Tri Mu class came into existence. It was organized at the home of one of the boys and a short time later the name 'Tri Mu' was adopted. This name means 'morals, minds, muscles,' this showing that the class believes in developing the whole man."

During the evening a number of selections were rendered by a double quartet from the Ellis club of Los Angeles. Four of these boys appeared in Glendale some time ago, and the numbers rendered last night were given an excellent reception, as were the songs rendered on the former occasion.

Dr. Francis, pastor of the First Baptist church of Los Angeles, was the principal speaker. He said in part:

"Why is a speaker like a wagon? Because, the longer the spoke the bigger the tire. I am here tonight as a substitute, and in looking up this word in a dictionary I find that 'substitute' means 'a small imitation of the real thing.'

"We are living today in tremendous times, and there are few who realize this fact. Some of the happenings of this day are greater than the events of the world war, for during the war everything was destructive, whereas now they are constructive. In the peace conference God is giving the United States another chance. During the war the eyes of the world were turned on America, but somehow this country lost its way. Today, the world is again looking to this country—we are being given another chance, and from the way Uncle Sam is conducting himself it would seem as though we are, this time, coming through in grand style. I believe that the biggest thing that has been done for years is the act of our secretary of state in boldly coming forward and showing to the world that we are ready to disarm and are willing to start this disarmament.

"We are living in a world of unrest, but from the attitude of the representatives of the nations at the peace conference it would seem that the people are in a teachable frame of mind. They seem to be willing to let the other fellow know a little bit about something. I wonder how many people realize what the treaties that have just been passed mean? The four-power treaty means a scrapping of 830,000 tons of war vessels; the five-power treaty means the eliminating of everything from the Pacific that looks like and that might lead to war; the nine-power treaty means the dawning of a new day for China. I did not think that Japan would give up its hold on things in China, nor that John Bull would give up her port in that country. Fifty years from today history will point to the doings of this time and say that these are the biggest things that have ever been done by human beings.

"The big need of the day is Christian men. Fellows who do, and do not put in their time talking. In the midst of all this tumult there is for the Christian a calm that the outside world connot understand. He realizes that God is in His heaven and all will be well."

Following Dr. Francis' address, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Girard rendered several beautiful vocal selections. The first number was "Barcarolle," by Chaminado, this being followed by "The Land of Long Ago." In response to the continued applause, Mr. and Mrs. Girard rendered a beautiful little selection that was requested, entitled "Mother Love."

At this point Spencer Robinson, "the singing mayor of Glendale," appeared on the scene and sang in his wonderful way "A Little Irish Love Song," after which, as an encore, Mr. Girard and Mr. Robinson sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," with which they have made such a hit in Glendale in the past few weeks.

Following the program the company adjourned to the banquet basement, where refreshments, prepared by the men, were served by a committee composed of Ray Galvin, Ray Bentley, J. F. Gray, J. R. Maxwell, Glen Ely, Rene Olin and Robert Ford.

Another selection was rendered by the double quartet, and Mr. Robinson and Mr. Girard also gave selections that were very well received. The entire assemblage sang "Perfect Day," after which the following toasts were responded to, with C. B. Elliott, teacher of the Tri Mu class, as toastmaster: "Our Wives," Mr. Roskin of Burbank; "Our Husbands," Mrs. J. L. Gray; "Our Sweethearts," Dale Wood; "Our Beaux," Miss Margaret McPherson; "Our Guests," Roy Kent.

HIGH GLEE CLUBS IN GOOD PROGRAM

Fine Audience Braves the Storm to Attend Their Concert

Interest in the glee clubs' concert of Glendale high was proved by the excellence audience which braved the rain Friday night to come out and hear the boys and girls sing, and incidentally to hear their director, Z. Earl Meeker, and the harpist, Alfred Kastner.

The girls made a brave showing, a rainbow in their vari-colored gowns at the front of the stage, with a thin, black line of heroes at the rear to represent the boys' glee club. This last numbers sixteen, but only nine were present. The nine did their best, however, to sing for the absentees as well as themselves, and the audience had no complaints to make of the manner in which they acquitted themselves.

Mr. Kastner's portion of the program was somewhat of a disappointment, as it developed he had a second engagement and made a quick get-away after playing the first four numbers of his program repertoire, viz. "Song Without Words" (Mendelssohn); "Impromptu Caprice" (G. Pierne); "First Arabesque" (Debussy), and "At the Fountain" (Zabel). His technique was wonderful and the audience was tremendously interested, but not moved emotionally. He himself did not seem to have much heart in his work.

The chorus work was most interesting and the response of the audience must have been gratifying to the singers and the director, though no encores were allowed. As usual they excelled in the gay spirited oumbers, the girls winning plaudits for the "June Rhapsody" (Daniels); "The Big Brown Bear" (Mana Zuca); "La Serenata" (Tosti), rendered in Italian, to which they took like ducks to water, singing the soft vocables almost better than they did English.

The melodious wail of "Long Ago in Egypt" (Lehman), was conscientiously sung by the boys' glee club, but they seemed more at home in "Song of the Sea" (Handel), and the jolly "Tinker's Song" (De Koven). The club has some very promising voices that were heard to advantage in "De Coppah Moon," and the boys came in strong on the chorus of "Danny Deever," the Kipling poem for which Damrosch provided a musical setting, the verses being sung in solo by Mr. Meeker in a quite splendid manner.

One of the great pleasures of the evening was the opportunity to hear Mr. Meeker, whose contributions were received with enthusiasm. His numbers included: Vision Fugitive; "Heroriade (Massenet); "Toreador Song" from Carmen (Bizet); "Vale" (Russell); "My Menagerie" (Fay Foster); "Sylvia" (Oley Speaks), and "The Danza," (Chadwick). It was a great pleasure to hear such thoroughly artistic work, particularly the farewell "Vale," by Russell and "Sylvia," which has rarely been more beautifully interpreted on the high school stage, where it has been sung many times.

The program closed with the bridal chorus "Rose Maiden" (Cowen), where the fresh young voices in both glee clubs were heard to advantage.

One outstanding feature of the evening's program was the fine enunciation of the director, which has been instilled into the clubs, the girls in particular singing the words with great distinctness and almost as one voice.

FOUNDERS' DAY CELEBRATED AT EAGLE ROCK

Like a big jolly family party was the celebration of "Founders' Day" by the Woman's Twentieth Century club on Thursday evening. The function was given the form of "Gentlemen's Night" and club husbands in goodly numbers were in attendance. The entire floor of the clubhouse was thrown open, revealing daintily set tables in the dining room, a polished floor for dancing in the auditorium, and a cheery, home-like blaze in the big fireplace of the reception room. Everywhere were great boughs of acacia, bowls and vases of the golden blossoms.

After a social hour Mrs. F. W. Ducker charmingly sang the old-time favorites, "Silver Threads Among the Gold," and "Annie Laurie." Mrs. C. W. Young, who had been asked by the president, Mrs. M. T. Lee, to take charge of the program, spoke in her always felicitous manner of the place the club had held in the community and her admiration of the foresight and dauntless effort on the part of the scattered ranchers' wives who, long before there was an Eagle Rock city, determined to have a club for mutual benefit and the promotion of all good works in the valley.

Mrs. Alice Winters, ex-president read a history of the club. It was organized in 1903 by 13 women (who must have scorned superstition), and met in each other's homes, walking long distances over dusty roads. The club was incorporated in 1907 and federated in 1908. Its membership is now about 200, with new names presented at every meeting. The handsome and convenient clubhouse was erected in 1914, and despite the two years of effort devoted entirely to the world war the mortgage upon it has been reduced to $1000. The club house is located on the corner of Colorado and Kenilworth avenue. The property has trebled in value. To prevent future crowding, the adjoining lot on the north has just been purchased by the executive board.

Amusing incidents of the early struggle of the club were now told by several members. Rev. E. Morgan Isaac followed with the topic, "The Clubwoman of the Church," and declared that the best work in his church was done by the members who are clubwomen, that they stand for the finest and best things, not only in the church but in every walk of life. This led him to a review of the changing thought and belief of the present day, whose traditions and narrow views are giving way to more enlightened ideas and a broader vision.

Sherrill B. Osborne, a son of Congressman H. Z. Osborne, called upon to discuss "The Clubwoman's Husband," facetiously outlined that individual's position, but complimented the clubwoman as being a good cook, house-keeper, and mother. Mrs. Young read a poem written years ago by Miss Sarah Palmer, a member of the New York Women's Press Club, one of the oldest clubs in the United States, which is worth reproducing everywhere:

"What is a woman's club?
"No idle place to chatter on the last new play,
Or whisper of a sister gone astray,
Or strip with cruel gossip every trace of sweetness
From some life borne down with strife.

'Tis not a place where fashion reigns supreme,
Where lack of style is sin beyond redeem,
Where outward garb is more than inward life—
These are the things a woman's club is not.

"What is a woman's club?
"A meeting place for those of purpose—great, and broad, and strong,
Whose aim is toward the stars, who ever long to make the patient, listening world resound with sweeter, purer music, nobler tones;

A place where kindly, helpful words are said,
And kindlier deeds are done, where hearts are fed—
Where wealth of brain for poverty atones,
Where hand grasps hand, and soul finds touch with soul.
This is a woman's club, a haven fair,
Where busy toilers drop an hour their load of care."

The only founder present, Mrs. J. Frackleton, and her husband, were called to seats facing the audience. There homage was paid the little, gray-haired woman and a pot of jonquils and fressias presented to her. Mrs. E. C. Jones, leaning on the back of the embarrassed lady's chair, sang in her fresh, young voice, two tender love songs, expressing the sentiment of the club for Mrs. Frackleton, who was almost too overcome to speak.

After the serving of delicious cake, ice cream, and coffee there was a call for the Virginia reel, in which young and old joined, and dancing continued until nearly the midnight hour. It is rumored that the club husbands enjoyed themselves so well they are hoping for more evenings of this kind.

SUNDAY SERVICES AT EAGLE ROCK

Rev. John Neil, D.D., ex-moderator of the general assembly of the Canadian Presbyterian church, will occupy the pulpit of the Presbyterian church Sunday morning, preaching on "The Power of the Church." On account of his position during the world war he was chosen to carry greetings from the Canadian church to President Wilson and also was sent with a message to the boys fighting in France. The evening address will be by Miss Maude M. Aldrich, a representative of the general assembly board of temperance and moral welfare. The evening lecture, by the pastor, will be on Maurice Maeterlinck's book, "Our Eternity," in which the author writes of such subjects as the survival of consciousness, injustice to death, annihilation, the theasophical hypothesis, communications from the dead, etc. Rev. 'SELF EXPRESSION' IS HIGHWAY TO HAPPINESS

"Self-expression," said Rev. E. Morgan Isaac, last Wednesday evening, continuing his course of metaphysical lectures, "is the highway to happiness. First, we have to learn a few fundamental thinges about ourselves. They are not hard to learn. In every man are fundamental potential powers undiscovered and unexplored. As he unfolds he begins to see the universal life of all that is.

"Normal man is a complete being physically, with every organ functioning perfectly and all having a spiritual significance. That can be illustrated symbolically. The mental powers and the spiritual self are perfect, nothing can be added to them, but they can be unfolded in self expression. When we learn to do that we will set things going in our little orbit. Self expression is the basic thing in life. Freedom is needed in the religious life of today. We must press forward—not go back—and start with the wonderful element man finds in himself—desire. In our desires we do not carry the thought of an unattainable thing, hence everything one desires is attainable. Man's capacity lies in his desire. This is not meant to apply to bad or impure desires, but to the use of mind and body as God intended. The inner self registers on the countenance."

The lecturer then described some of the wonderful capabilities of the body and their right use and said the body should never be regarded lightly, as of small value.

"Rising a step from the physical plane," he continued, "we find ambition, aspiration. Those desires must never be granted at the expense of other people. On the third plane man wants knowledge and in every way strives to obtain it, delving into the past. We love the man who wants to know; he may become a materialist, but gray hairs will bring wisdom. Next comes the moral sense. Where does it come from? His inner self. How fascinating is the plane of moral excellence manifested in some men! Conscience can be wrongly used, it can be applied to one's own doings, but not to another's. We cannot judge for another. Intermingled and blended are these planes of life.

"The emotional nature can be crippled if never expressed. Stoics are mistaken in repressing emotion. All poetry, art, music and drama are inspired by emotion. We could not have religion without our emotions. But emotion must be controlled or it will run away with us. It is the great dynamo which makes things go.

"Now we come to the intellectual realm. If possible, spend a few hours every day reading the great books of thinkers and it will develop your own mind. Intellectual supremacy is a wonderful thing.

"The greatest of all attributes man has never fully found in himself until he has found spirituality. That is religion, he is free, and nothing, no one, can hold him. It matters not how that consciousness is gained, or what one's idea of God is. God cannot be defined. He is immensity. He is everywhere. What a holy, joyous thought that God is ever with each individual! This is the acme of spiritual perception and enjoyment. Unfold, and 'the kingdom of heaven is within you.'"

Truths in Epigram

In life there is nothing more unexpected and surprising than the arrivals and departures of pleasure. If we find it in one place today, it is vain to seek it there tomorrow. You can not lay a trap for it.—Smith (1830-1867).

Gain not base gains; base gains are the same as losses.—Hesiod (720 B. C.).

WAGES OF WOMEN

The current statement that a woman who has to support herself can live on $11.78 a week has no special bearing on the subject of women's wages. Thus it misses the purpose of its formulation. Doubtless a woman could keep alive on the sum mentioned, but the effort might cease to be regarded by her as worth while. Moreover, the average woman wage-earner has dependents. It is not to be assumed that, even if in receipt of $11.78 weekly, she has this impressive total to lavish on her own needs. The Industrial Welfare commission after investigation reports that the cost of many commodities has fallen, but finds that increase in rents has wiped out the apparent advantage. Consequently the old problem seems still to press for consideration.

Perhaps the theory that wages ought to be cut to the lowest point that will permit the person earning them to keep alive, lacks in itself, some elements of perfection. Some years ago a newspaper woman of New York was asked to come over to Philadelphia and join the staff of a daily in the latter city. She arrived and had a pleasing talk with the Philadelphia manager, and finally reached the subject of compensation.

"Now let's see," said the manager suavely. "How much is it going to cost you to live in Philadelphia?"

"That is none of your business," answered the lady truthfully, and swept from the room.

Doubtless the more humble toiler, if given an opportunity to express herself, would show the possession of a spirit akin to that of the indignant writer. Or in other words, the woman who works is entitled to recognition as a human being.

SENATORIAL IGNORANCE

It is not pleasing to admit the possibility of senatorial ignorance. However, it is less distressing to do this, than to acknowledge that senators who oppose ratification of the agreements growing out of the disarmament conference, deliberately hope to injure the cause of peace. Such senators have a right to draw the inference that they err, from the circumstance that they have the support of the yellow jingo press. But at the worst, it is believed that the injury they inflict must fall upon their own reputations. It is not supposable that a handful of truculent orators will be permitted to thrust the powers back to the old status, each basing its security on the readiness to make war.

Some of the dissenters express willingness to ratify the treaty touching the subject of naval reduction and the ten-year vacation, but not that affecting the problems of the Orient. Of course the first treaty would be impossible without the second. Not a nation concerned would disarm in any part. Not a feature of the former plans for naval construction could be abrogated. The competition would be resumed, and the certainty of war made clear. The Anglo-Jap alliance, cause of much uneasiness, would remain. The senate must ratify all, or be left powerless to ratify any.

The yellows, whether senators or editors, contend that if Japan were to retain its hold of Sagalien island, a conflict between Japan and Russia would ensue, and in such conflict, the United States, and other powers signatory, would be under obligation to support the Japanese. Of this it is almost enough to say "Important if true." Happily it is not true. Japan has agreed to relinquish to Russia the island in question. Failure to do so would be violation of the pledge, and automatically relieve the treaty associates of Japan from all duty of countenancing, much less sustaining, the Japanese.

It is a little puzzling that senators should be so ready to condemn the treaties, when their objections demonstrate that they do not understand the purpose, the effect, or even the plain terms of the agreements against which they utter windy words.

THE DIRIGIBLE

This government bought two immense dirigibles abroad. The price was about $2,000,000 for each. One of them exploded before it had left England, the death toll on that occasion being 63. The other reached the United States from Italy, and with devastating promptitude followed the example of the first, the death toll being somewhat less. Many others of the type have been lost. The Germans sent out eighty-three dirigibles during the war, and at the close of the war had lost sixty-six. The late Count Zeppelin built several peace time aircraft of this type, and lived long enough to learn that they had been wrecked.

Of course the science of war is not for the layman to discuss. It is not strange, however, if some civilian inquiry were to arise as to the utility of procuring, at great cost, aircraft that appears to lack structural integrity. This is especially the case since the whole trend of sentiment is against war; when the efforts of the powers are being applied in concert to abolish war. The fact that strenuous economy is being displayed towards the army and navy, which, regardless of war, must have a certain police value, also naturally comes into consideration. There is no indication of a tendency to save the public's money in relation to dirigibles. This might stir up discontent in view of the circumstance that there is lack of general understanding as to the office of the dirigible. Perhaps if there were a lucid explanation of what had been hoped to accomplish with the huge bag that fell in flames, the public would not protest at the item of expense, although it still would view with pain the awful cost in human life.

NO WILL TO BREAK

A lawyer who had acquired a fortune as an expert in the interpretation of wills recently died in Chicago. In connection with the will of the late Marshall Field, he had received a fee of $100,000. And this expert on wills left none of his own. Possibly due to inadvertence. Just as likely the result of his experience.

Samuel J. Tilden was among the foremost lawyers of his day. He drew up his own will, which lawyers took into court and broke. This is but a single instance showing the uncertain fate that awaits a testamentary document. If there are no warring heirs, the desires of the testator, unless clearly contrary to public policy, generally are permitted to be carried out. If there is opposition, the result never is to be conjectured. It depends upon the shrewdness of attorneys, and the mood and training of the court.

On the other hand, if no will is made, the law specifies the manner in which an estate shall be distributed. Thus if a rich man wishes to leave his estate to relatives, ignoring the opportunity for outside benefactions, he may elect not to make a will. He then is aware in advance of the disposition that will be made of the property, and he is free from all worry lest a legal expert get a fee of $100,000 for explaining what the testator meant.

RUSSIANS TALK WAR

The world has been impressed of late years with the stupendous economic cost of war. The richest nations have emerged from armed conflict staggering under a burden of debt. Another great war involving the great powers, and bankruptcy would be general and complete. Yet here is Russia, its millions on the verge of famine, saved from death by the bitter bread of charity; a country without money, without credit, producing nothing, manufacturing nothing, talking about war with Japan.

Japan has infringed upon Russian territory. It is pledged to retire. That the Russia of today could force such retirement, there is no sign. It is helpless save as it is able to influence the world outside by a steady stream of propaganda. It is not making friends. It is not winning confidence. Nothing it has done, nothing it seems able to do, could restore it to respectability. The only hope for Russia to be discerned by the unpurchased observer, is the fall of the present regime. After that there might be a reconstruction. Bolshevism is not constructive.

Were Japan to insist upon staying in territory to which it has no title, and where its presence is unwelcome, there might some day be a Russia strong enough of purpose to expel it. That could not be the Russia dominated by a Trotzky and a Lenine. Before there can be a free and alert Russia this pair will have to vanish, and their theories with them.

Some people are too good to be interesting.

Experience teaches us how to make other kinds of mistakes.

If misery loves company it's up to everybody to get married.

A woman's "no" doesn't mean yes when she says it to the wrong man.

HOW TO MAKE LOVE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

How to make love ought to be taught in school, said an intelligent lady of my acquaintance.

Surely few subjects have more to do with the happiness of the race. And more tragedies are due to ignorance upon this topic than because of not knowing how to parse a noun or draw a map of Guatemala.

DR. FRANK CRANE

Well, said I, you are fifty years old and have had some experience and more observation, suppose you give me some rules, real honest to goodness rules, whereby a young man can improve his technique.

I will, she said. And went on somewhat as follows:

First, observe the Golden Rule. Do as you'd be done by.

Use your imagination. Try to put yourself in her place. Then you will not say offensive things, you will not be guilty of culpable neglect, or acts of rudeness and selfishness. Nothing needs imagination like love.

Accept her as she is. If you do not, then you do not love her, but you love some figment of your fancy. Don't try to change her. It would be better, if she does not suit you, to get another girl.

Don't criticize. Finding fault is both the easiest and most dangerous thing in the world.

Try to see what to commend in her, and speak of such things. Appreciate! Love grows on appreciation.

Show her that you want her that her presence makes you happy, that she means more to you than do others.

Respect her moods. If she wants to be silent, do not insist on her talking. If she has an impulse of gayety and high spirits, do not reprove her.

Don't regulate her, nor attempt to. Respect her individuality. She is a person, as much as you are. She has a right to her peculiarities. If you don't like them, she's not the girl for you.

Let her do things for you. Let her realize she is indispensable. A woman likes to be thought of some use.

Be frank. Don't conceal things. Be open and above board.

Be firm. Be courageous. Live your own life, have your own opinions. Don't let her dominate you. Every woman tries it, and, if she succeeds, despises her victim. Don't turn yourself into a valet to her.

Be master. She wants to be mastered. She wants to look up to you. But don't be an egotistic fool.

Be courteous, always polite, with her. Do not let the intimacies destroy the adornments. Little attentions mean a lot to a woman.

Speak love. Don't take it for granted. Tell her. Tell her every day. Give your feeling for her constant expression.

Be honest.

Be just.

Be fair.

Be good. Not too good, of course. But good enough to make a woman not afraid to give herself, her happiness, her honor, into your hands. Good enough to be the father of her children.

THE LISTENING POST

A full page advertisement in a contemporary newspaper conveys the rather startling message that "millions now living will never die."

It is not a figurative statement.

It is declared to be a literal truth.

And it is supported and set forth by some individual who is advertised as "Judge" something or other.

We learn that it is the purpose of the Judge to deliver a lecture to prove that millions now living will not die.

That they will be "restored to perfect conditions of body and mind and live forever on earth in peace and happiness."

No collection is to be taken, we are assured of that.

But the lecture which has "comforted multitudes bereaved by the late war" can be had for twenty-five cents.

Coin of the realm.

Surely cheap enough for the assurance that you may be of the millions who will not die.

* * *

Immortality here on earth for twenty-five cents.

Everlasting life for a quarter.

The promise of living forever for the fourth part of a dollar.

And it is all seriously set forth.

It may be that some people will believe it.

They may invest a quarter in earthly immortality.

Get comfort for twenty-five cents.

As you might get surcease of sorrow by the injection of morphine.

* * *

In addition to delivering the lecture to the limited audience the building will contain, it will be broadcasted by radio.

Set forth into the atmosphere.

To carry its tidings of no death.

* * *

There is a lot of good and wholesome work to do in the world.

There is a lot of reason and philosophy and encouragement and real helpfulness.

In the way of literature.

In poetry.

In music and the drama.

It is too bad we do not use more of it.

And it is equally too bad that any of us should permit ourselves to be humbugged.

With the assurance of an earthly immortality.

And lose the chance of doing our work for the time we are here.

It is too bad we should feed on mental drugs and anodynes and pain-killers.

When there is a lot of good food in the world that minds might be nourished with.

There is work.

High endeavor.

Helpfulness and humanity and charity and all that.

Normal living and thinking means happiness.

Delusions and mental pain-killers and intellectual drug addiction mean ill health and misery and disaster.

As with the man in the lunatic asylum.

Some one approached him up the walk and said: "Are there any crazy people here?"

And the man said, indicating a man working nearby with a hoe:

"That man is crazy. He is crazy as a loon. He thinks he is Napoleon Bonaparte."

* * *

"But surely he is not," returned the inquirer.

"I should say he is not," declared the other man. "I AM."

And when anyone tells you that anybody living on earth will not die, remember that he is telling you bosh.

And don't you believe it.

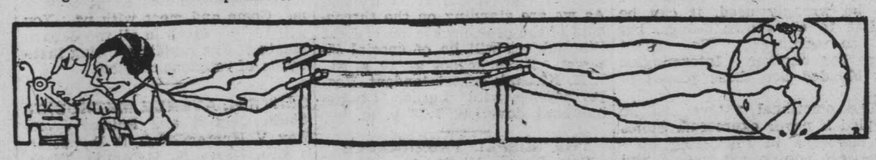
We are all going to die sometime.

But most of us are keeping busy enough so we do not fret about it.

* * *

We are not looking for a quarter's worth of immortality.

JAMES W. FOLEY.



An Appreciation of G. Harold Powell

By DON FRANCISCO

Who was associated with him for many years in placing Sunkist products on the market, and who knew him probably as well as any other man, both in his personal and business life in Southern California

California, the United States, the world bow their heads in sorrow at the passing of G. Harold Powell.

And yet, there is left to each a feeling of thanksgiving that he was spared for so many years of invaluable achievement. He served and by his example in serving has left an imperishable monument.

G. Harold Powell's life is marked by accomplishment, too many to mention, but even more important than the things which he guided to success, is the spirit of the man which holds its inspiration for those who follow after.

His high purpose was service. He gave of his vision, his mind, his strength and his purse to those movements that he thought worthy of support.

First he gave to all agriculture through the government of the United States. He accepted each task gladly and carried it to a place where others could take up the work and profit by his endeavors.

During the past ten years he has guided the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, the pioneer in co-operative agricultural organizations. He steadied its growth, he visualized its possibilities, he inspired men to a love of the thing that they were building.

When the country went to war, he was chosen by Herbert Hoover to head the division of perishable foods of the United States food administration. With characteristic insight he gathered about him the men who were best qualified to manage each branch of the perishable food industry and within a short time had laid down a set of policies which proved their fundamental soundness.

Within the last month of his life, G. Harold Powell, chairman of the marketing committee of the agricultural conference, called by President Harding, made a report which is believed to be one of the most important documents on the subject ever written. It is his last bequest to the nation's agricultural progress.

With all these large tasks which he accomplished, there have been a constant flow of others to which he gave his clear mind and his stabilizing judgment. He was vice president of the American Association of Refrigeration, a member of the Pomological society, the Society for Horticultural Science, and the Washington Botanical society. He was a director of the Los Angeles chamber of commerce, a member of the committee of domestic distribution of the chamber of commerce of the United States, on the executive committee of the state agricultural legislative committee, and on the Los Angeles board of the Foreign Finance Corporation.

G. Harold Powell's personal achievements have been such as to seem almost incredible, but he multiplied his ability and his enthusiasm and his clear mind through his leadership of men. He believed in men.

One of his statements may best illustrate this faith in men. "The basis of the co-operative organization is men. Capital cannot co-operate; products cannot co-operate; only men can co-operate."

His leadership was based primarily on his tact, his clear vision, his foresight and his fairness. He will not be remembered as a fighter. His was rather the mind that saw eventualities afar off and prepared those about him to deal with them wisely at the time a decision became necessary. The power he held over men was significant. Almost never was he overruled by his board of directors.

He believed in young men. He liked to select those who promised to develop under responsibility and then allowed them to work out their own destinies under his sane counsel and inspiring friendship. He gave his man new responsibilities as rapidly as they could take them. He passed on the details to others and left his own mind free for the larger executive problems.

That, something about G. Harold Powell that made him the leader that he was may not be expressed in words. It was rather the spirit that was the man. One person has described it as a "radiance of character" that shone out and through the man to his associates and filled them with the indomitable spirit of enthusiasm and success which was his.

It was a spirit of service that inspired to like service. Many times during his career he had to consider opportunities which offered far more in pecuniary return and higher places from the standpoint of personal aggrandizement, but he always put them aside, because he felt that in his work he was doing something profoundly worth while.

This spirit of his pervaded his whole organization. It is found in large measure in all of his associates. They are men who might find greater financial rewards elsewhere, but who find in their work rewards above purchase of money. They have felt the touch of G. Harold Powell's life.

Combined with this power over men, was a keen scientific mind which cast aside the superficial aspect of every problem and dug unerringly to the fundamentals. All his work is characterized by a thoroughness that soives the problems by finding the causes and eradicating them.

Early in his work with the United States department of agriculture, he solved the difficulty which was costing apple growers huge sums every year through decay in storage.

His success with this problem led to his selection for the task of helping the Georgia peach growers decrease the decay of their fruit in transit. In this work he devised the first pre-cooling system.

Then when the orange growers of California needed assistance with the problems of transporting their fruit to the eastern markets, G. Harold Powell was assigned to the work.

As was chacteristic of the man, he did not attack the orange decay problem by setting up a laboratory, but took off his coat and went to work in the groves. The results of this work are apparent in millions of dollars returned to the growers every year.

Within a year after the completion of his work in connection with decay in oranges, he became manager of the Citrus Protective league, accepting the post of general manager of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange a year later, in 1912.

In accepting this position he declined an invitation to become dean and director of a college of agriculture of one of the largest universities in the country at the highest salary ever offered for a similar position.

G. Harold Powell was a speaker and writer of note, of ability and of charm. He expressed his meaning in clear, terse, understandable English which had a power to convince. Much of his best work is left in the form of numerous government bulletins which serve agriculture in all parts of the country. He wrote one book, "Co-operation in Agriculture," which is considered the authoritative treatment of the subject.

In his personal tastes, G. Harold Powell loved the simple things of life. He spent many hours in the open air, being a student of flowers, trees and all natural things. His home, surrounded by beautiful gardens, expresses the simplicity of the man and his love of the truly beautiful.

As a man and a friend he is revered by men and women over the world. His influence has been felt wherever he has been. He is honored by the esteem of high and low alike for he was sincerly democratic.

He had the right to wear the Cross of the Chevalier of the Order of the Crown, given him by King Albert of Belgium for work in the relief of that country.

G. Harold Powell has left achievement from which the nation will always benefit. He has left a multitude of friends, who saddened by his loss, thank God for his life and are sincerely grateful for the privilege which has been theirs in knowing him.

His life, his achievements, his spirit, his service combine to form an imperishable monument to G. Harold Powell, the man.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Unjournalistic conduct of certain newspapermen is denounced by the district attorney as presumptuous and dastardly. Nobody who becomes aware of the conduct in question could feel an impulse to take issue with the gentleman. He also expresses regret that there is no way in which he may place the offenders in jail. On this point there is a natural hope that upon reflection the way may be found.

HENRY JAMES

It appears that a gang, under pretense of being officers, took a colored man in charge. For some reason they believed him to have knowledge that would be of value to them, or that they could scare him into admission of knowledge that they then could twist to their own purposes. They are said to have held him practically a prisoner, to have taken him to a graveyard at night, where one of their confederates played the role of ghost as part of the scheme of intimidation.

All this is so clearly an outrageous infringement upon human rights that it seems odd that it may be permitted to pass merely with a rebuke. Was it not kidnaping? Was it not a form of assault? False imprisonment? But perhaps the district attorney, busy as he is with important criminal cases, has not the time to treat small fry.

The studied effort to injure Hollywood and the whole of the moving picture industry, happily is having a reaction. It is so manifestly the result of a plot, that the meanness of it renders it ineffective.

Certain individuals are interested in production of pictures in the east. They would be glad to destroy the industry in the west. One of them owns newspapers.

Down in Oklahoma a girl of seven years has been licensed to preach. The poor kid is to be pitied rather than blamed. Let the blame rest with her parents, if she has any.

However, the parents will experience embarrassments. Suppose that in the domestic circle, between pulpit shows, there were to arise necessity for spanking the preacher!

One may observe in a large type advertisement the statement that "there are millions of people on earth who will never die."

Possibly this is an exaggeration, but a lot of the millions will live long enough to be played for suckers.

Back in Boston they have convicted an official of malfeasance, misfeasance and non-feasance. Then they seem to have run out of types of feasance, or doubtless they would have found him guilty some more.

Much may be learned by reading items of court news. The average lay reader doubtless learned a little even from the item mentioned.

People had no more than learned how to pronounce Sinn Fein when Ireland set them to guessing at the pronunciation of Ard Fheis. However, if the factions represented by the titles shall get together and accomplish the equivalent of smoking the pipe of peace, they will both be pronounced wise in purpose and the names won't matter so much.

A Chicagoan who asserts that he is a cousin of the elderly Oser who apparently is slated to marry the McCormick child, is said to have made a call upon the McCormicks recently. He explained to the butler that he desired to meet his new relatives. He was not received. Unfortunately he had selected Monday as the time for his visit, regardless of the circumstance that Monday is washday. Nobody likes to receive then.

Probably the story is not true anyhow. Some reporter may have fabricated it as a delicate way of indicating some of the social puzzlements due to arise out of the proposed union.

Marquis Curzon says that as a result of the Pacific pact no war will be seen in the region affected, by any man now living. There were others present, American and English, and they endorsed the view.

In the eyes of the opposition to the pact these facts are exactly what ails the whole matter. They are in favor of war but without the courage to say so. They yearn for a conflict with Japan, and they rage that the prospect has faded.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

As a broad, general principle I object to emancipated mothers. They are apt to go too far. Once freed from what they call their shackles, they sometimes get clear out of the social enclosure before they realize it. But there is one particular emancipated mother I approve of heartily. She has just disclosed to one large pin-eared son just what she thinks of his brand of bullying.

"Ain't I been a good son?" he asked me, almost tearfully. "Haven't I always provided for her fine?"

I could say yes with heartiness to the providing part. As to his being a good son—well, I have my doubts about that. He has furnished her a house rent free and for years he has sent her $150 each month, and at Christmas he goes to visit her and takes some present. But between times he is as mean as cow-itch.

"What did you do with your money this year?" he always asks at Christmas time.

And the poor woman has to go through her books—he makes her keep books—and show him. If he does not like an item he says so forcibly. He continually complains that she is spending too much money, although she is spending no more than the money he sends her and she should have a right to spend that. If she gets too many dresses a year he tells her about it, and if her butcher's bills are larger than he thinks they ought to be he tells her, and if she gives money to the church or the dog-robbers, or Faith, Hope and Charity he moans like a steam siren. So he did this year.

"It isn't any of your business what I spent my money for," said the old lady. "It's my money. If you do not want to give me money, you may stop. I can support myself. I had rather do so than be made to feel that I am an object of charity."

The son has been crying around ever since about that. He feels that he has been grievously misunderstood. He says that what he said to his mother was for her own good, and that if she were not getting old and childish she would never have taken that tone with him. But I'm not so sure of that. I happen to know how she plans to support herself if she has to.

She intends to teach auction. That's no sign of childishness.

The Barton Bedtime Stories

THE FIRST MUSKRAT HOUSE

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

"Who else did the whale and the seal find floating on Big Flood?" Ripple Beaver wanted to know.

"Nobody," soberly replied Dr. Muskrat. "Not another living thing. Not so much as a flea. Just the beaver and the squirrel on their big oak tree and the two muskrats, after the seal showed old Fluke-slasher the Whale where to take them. And the seal's mate, of course. She stayed because it was her time to live on land and this was the nearest thing she could find.

"But they really had a wonderful time. Those two little mousy great-grandparents of mine could get on anywhere. They found swimming wasn't nearly as hard as it looked; they'd strike out after a budding branch as it floated past as boldly as any one and they soon grew fat and happy.

"Indeed, they felt so much at home that they were the first ones to build themselves a house. They knawed little dead twigs off the oak and tried to weave them together as they used to weave their grass. Of course that wouldn't work, twigs being stiff, cantankerous stuff for weaving. So the lady seal brought them a flipper-ful of mud, just to keep the twigs from slipping. They plastered up the out-side chinks with that, and when they got the inside nicely lined with shredded bark—they had a nest to be proud of—very like the ones we muskrats build now.

"When the squirrel and the beaver saw how comfortable it was they set to work to build one, too. They had some arguments about it because the squirrel hated to get that mud against her fur; she said right then she was going to use leaves the next time—if she could ever get them. And she wanted to be way up in a nice, tall crotch with the wind blowing under her; she said the water, lap-lap-lapping at the log floor set her toes to tickling. But she had to take what she got for her beaver husband did most of the building.

"Once houses are built they are certain sure to have babies in them. There were five little muskrats. I've heard they were very mousy at first, but their mother kept pinching and patting at their little tails until she made them very muskratty and handsome. And there were two each of squirrels and beavers. There was only one baby seal, but he was a big one, so the old oak tree was very well populated. They were all out of the nest, learning to swimm—or climb—by the time the raven came flapping along and found them."

OCCUPATION TAX UNDER DISCUSSION

BURBANK, Feb. 24.—The realty board of this city met Monday night in the woman's club house. Among the subjects taken up for discussion was that of city occupation license, and it was the concensus of opinion that the ordinance covering the license matter was seriously in need of revision. It was the voice of the board that the licenses were unequitable and various examples were cited in proof of it. It was said that Chafee who sells bread paid a license of $12 per year while bakeries established here paid a license of $35. Banks and lumberyards pay $12. Also, it was brought ou that many building contractors do not pay their license and that in some other instances, the license is so exhorbitant that the authorities have not the "nerve" to collect it, although, as was said, they thereby fail to perform their duty as executors of the law.

On the evening of March 6 the board will entertain the heads of the various factories of this city and also C. C. C. Tatum, president of the state realty boards and Glen Williams, state secretary, both from Los Angeles. Luncheons are regularly served at these meetings.

PIANO AND VIOLIN CONTEST JUDGES

Miss Adelaide Trowbridge, head of the piano department of the University of Southern California, Miss Eva Frances Tike, president of the Los Angeles Teachers' association, and Miss Bertha Wilbur, a pupil of Godowski, have consented to act as judges in the piano and violin contest which is to take place in the women's clubhouse Saturday of this week at 3 p. m. The contestants are members of the Junior and Juvenile Music clubs of Eagle Rock.

MONTHLY DANCE

The monthly dance of the Women's Twentieth Century club will be given this evening in the clubhouse and splendid music is assured as the Maryland hotel orchestra, which so delighted the dancers last month, has again been engaged. Residents of the valley, not necessarily club members, are welcome at these pleasant social affairs. Tickets $1 a couple, and war tax.

THREE PLAYERS FOR TUESDAY EVENING

The Community Players of Eagle Rock, Mrs. A. G. Reily president, will present three one-act plays in the Central school auditorium next Tuesday evening, entitled "A Fond Delusion," "A Bean of Bath" and "Shan." The community orchestra organized last year by Miss Laura Mattingly, teacher of music in the schools, will play. This organization is earnestly striving to develop and make public the dramatic talent existing in Eagle Rock.

Try this. Get a small bottle of store. Your clogged nostrils open right up; your head is clear; no more hawking or snuffing. Count fifty. All the stuffiness, dryness, struggling for breath is gone. You feel fine.—Adv.

SUBURBS JOINING FOR BETTERMENT

Cities Surrounding Los Angeles Form Mutual Benefit Committee

A plan whereby the suburban cities of Los Angeles county will be organized for the discussion of matter pertaining to the betterment of the outlying communities and for the mutual benefit of Los Angeles and the suburban communities, was outlined to City Manager W. H. Reeves by Wyllis S. Abbott of Venice, who has been appointed chairman of the committee known as the Inter-City Suburban committee, by the board of directors of the Los Angeles City club. This committee is an auxiliary organization of the Los Angeles City club.

The Los Angeles City club now has a membership of some 2500 members of which about 10 per cent live in the suburban towns. Glendale has 28 members ranking with the leaders among suburban cities.

It is proposed to group these suburban members in a section and to appoint to this inter-city and suburban committee a representative from each town represented in the club membership. When it is found that a town is represented by a number of members as in the case of Pasadena and Glendale and other suburbs a choice will be made by them by selection of a spokesman.

It is planned to give this inter-city and suburban committee one day each month at the club when matters of interest to the outlying districts will be discussed. The first meeting will be held at the Los Angeles City club on March 11 at which Mr. Reeves or some other delegate will probably be given an opportunity to tell of Glendale's plans for a municipally-owned bus line operating between Los Angeles and Glendale.

It was the idea of having Glendale members of this committee appointed that Mr. Abbott visited Glendale Thursday. He stated that Glendale owing to its member ship in the City club is entitled to three members on the committee. One member has already been appointed and two more are needed. A tentative list of candidates are being considered. W. E. Evans is the Glendale member of this committee. Other members in addition to Mr. Abbott, the chairman are, Rev. Dana Bartlett of Beverly, Charles C. Chapman of Fullerton, George A. Damon of Pasadena, Lyle Pendergast and George H. Dunlop.

OWN YOUR HOME SLOGAN FRUITFUL

The slogan, "Own Your Own Home," has taken such hold of the one-time renter that the supply of lots in Glendale Manor has dwindled from 300 to half a dozen in three weeks. This has necessitated the opening of another tract adjoining, priced in such a way that many lots were sold the first day and now, on the fifth day, but few of this tract remain unsold. We do not know of another instance where four hundred lots have been appropriated by home seekers in so short a time.

It is understood that more than 20 houses will be started at once; it is further estimated that more than 100 will be built within 60 days. This will complete a link in the chain of homes from the mountains to Los Angeles and thence, soon, to the sea.

Last Sunday hundreds of people visited Glendale Manor, and the consensus of opinion was that nowhere in Southern California was there afforded such wonderful mountain views as from the amphitheater of the Glendale Manor tract.

The bridegroom is never of as much importance as the bride, and she is of less importance than her dress.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

THE DOING OF THE TASK

I wonder of my place and task,
I sit and ponder,
And let my airy fancies back,
Here, there and yonder.
I look way off there in the blue
Of heaven o'er me,
And yet the task I ought to do
Is right before me.

I speculate uncertainly
Like fishes nibbling,
And fill the paper on my knee
With hopeless scribbling.
"Where is my work and what?" I cry
And comes back to me
The voice of duty in reply:
"Here I am! DO ME!"

I think too often we may peer
In stellar spaces
For things to do when they are here
In our home places.
The little duty steps we climb
Even just in rhyming,
Will lead us to the stars in time
If we keep climbing.

Our dreams may plague us overmuch,
Though they have beauty
And Fancy with her dreamy touch
Make mock of duty.
Think not too much of why or how,
To fret or rue it,
My task's beside me even now,
So let me do it.

NEW MAXWELL WINS APPROVAL

In designing the new Maxwell special attention has been given to body comfort, easy riding and pleasing appearance. An unusual amount of leg room has been provided in this new body and the cushions are deep, wide and high.

The rear springs have been lengthened eight inches so that the wonderful riding qualities of the car are very noticeable to all who have priviledge of riding in it.

The top and body lines of the new Maxwell have been so completely changed and improved that it does not have the appearance of any previous model. Disc wheels and cord tires are furnished as regular equipment and give the car the appearance of being much longer than it really is, while the wheel base has been increased only one inch.

The Maxwell is handled in Glendale by the Glendale Motor company, 246 South Brand Blvd.

HEATH IS PREPARED TO GIVE SERVICE

A. J. Heath, who has been a resident of Glendale for the past year and who has been in the employ of the Union Oil company, has purchased the C. & B. service station, corner Brand and Colorado, and is making many changes and improvements in the place before announcing that he is ready to give real service to the automobile public.

Painters are on the ground renovating the place, adding more shelving and otherwise adding to the efficiency of this popular service station. Mr. Heath will carry a full line of tires, automobile accessories, oils, etc.

La Crescenta

The concert given by 24 members of the Glendale Madrigal club at the school auditorium Wednesday evening was one of the most enjoyable events of the past week. The concert was colonial in costume and program. The soloists included Mrs. A. M. Draper, Mrs. H. MasMullen, Mrs. C. A. Parker, Miss Virginia Freeman, Charles M. Comfort, A. M. Draper and Miss E. Moore, reader. The proceeds of this concert will be for the building fund of the Community church.

The senior class of the Community Sunday school will meet at the home of Dr. B. H. Smith on Los Angeles avenue, Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Thomas were hosts to a congenial group of friends last Monday evening, at dinner. The guests included Mrs. Stephen Raymond, Miss Carla Schramm, Mrs. Grace Thomas, Mrs. J. C. Haskell and Anthony Anderson, of Los Angeles, and Miss E. Russell of Vancouver.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Anderson of Montrose entertained the Tuesday Bridge club at a buffet supper last Tuesday evening. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Culberson, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Baldridge, Dr. and Mrs. E. N. Nettleton, Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Minford, Mrs. H. Bastable, Mrs. M. Adams, Miss Delia Bastable and Donald Dewey. High scores were made by Mrs. Bastable, Mrs. Minford, Mr. Minford and Dr. Nettleton.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Murdock of Community avenue are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a little daughter.

The building committee of the Community church held its first meeting at the home of Rev. H. A. Kelso on Los Angeles avenue Thursday evening. The committee includes Rev. Kelso, F. K. Czerniski, L. A. Potter, W. Wise, Dr. B. H S.mith and S. Bickle.

CITY ASKED TO MEND BAD PIECE OF ROAD

Alex Mitchel representing the north-west section of Glendale appeared before the council and asked that the city do something with regard to relieving the cause of accidents at the west end of Kenneth road.

He stated that there is a point on the western end of this road that is covered with silt at each rain and which, after the rain has cleared away, is very dangerous to automobile travel. This occurs at the point where there is a dip in the highway.

He said that within a few weeks there has been two rather serious accidents, the victims of one of which are now in the Glendale sanitarium.

The council members thanked Mr. Mitchel for advising them if this matter and assured him that they would do what they can to furnish immediate relief. The city manager was instructed by the board to see that a gang of men is sent out to clear off the offending sand at once.

ASKS PERMISSION TO BUILD CURB

A petition was presented to the City Council by J. E. Smith, who represented the property owners on East Elk street between Brand boulevard and Maryland avenue, requesting that the frontage building line along that stretch be changed from 25 feet back from the property line to a point flush with the sidewalk. Mr. Smith said that all of the property along this stretch was signed up with the exception of the Catholic church.

The members of the council expressed themselves in favor of granting this permit, providing Mr. Smith would secure the proper application blanks from the city clerk. The council asked that this matter be referred to them again next week.

Mr. Smith said that it is his intention to construct a large apartment house on this street just as soon as a permit to start the work is received.

CITIZENS OF GRAND VIEW BACKING CITY

Improvement Association in Favor of Bonds of $125,000 for Busses

"The members of the Grand View Improvement association is standing right back of the city in its fight for a municipal bus line between Glendale and Los Angeles," said Mr. Alex Mitchell, when he appeared before the council. "At a meeting of this association held Wednesday night, resolutions were adopted to the effect that the organization will do everything it can to assist in this matter and it pledged itself to work earnestly for the passage of a bond issue in the sum of $125,000, providing such a bond issue was voted on for this purpose.

"We're a live bunch up there and we want to show the people of Glendale that we stand for anything that is for the best interest of the city as a whole. We also want to show the Pacific Electric company that Glendale is united in this fight for lower transportation rates, and that we intend to get them one way if we cannot secure them in another."

Burbank News

ORGANIZE BAPTIST SUNDAY SCHOOL

Following the preliminary organization of the local Sunday school, held on February 14th, the Baptist people of Burbank met on Sunday, February 19th at 9:45 a. m., at the Atherton Villa, and completed their organization, with the following officers: Superintendent Sunday school, Wm. E. Roskam; secretary and treasurer, Mr. Frank Caldwell.

The attendance at the initial service was very gratifying and five classes were organized, and plans are under way for more junior classes. The superintendent was for the present elected to teach the junior married peoples' class. Mr. Sandison for the senior class, Mrs. Scofield for the Young People's class, and Mrs. Caldwell and Mrs. Hutchison for the beginners and the primary department.

The Sunday school will meet regularly at 9:45 at the Atherton Villa at Fourth and Cypress streets and the field pastor of the Southern California Baptist convention will preach at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. every Sunday until further notice at the Villa, so that the services will be unbroken. You are invited to attend.

The fact that the Atherton Villa is a Baptist institution makes it very convenient for the young organization to carry out the meetings, and it is particularly adaptable for the Sunday school as there are several smaller groups available for class rooms in addition to the assembly room, where the general meetings of the Sunday school and the preaching services will be held.

MEMORY FAILS MAN 71 YEARS OF AGE

It was fortunate for Carl Witt, 71 years old, that he fell into the hands of Marshal Cole and his police force instead of being cast over to the merciless fate of some police departments.

Having suffered the failure of memory, the old man wandered from the home of his nephew, Martin Witt of Phoenix street in Los Angeles, to Burbank where on Saturday night he was picked up by the police force. It was at once recognized that the man was suffering from mental aberration and so he was given the best of care that night but allowed to go unhindered the following day, but again Sunday night he was found wandering about trying to find his nephew's home which he insisted was up in the hills. By close and patient questioning, the department secured enough information to warrant starting into the city on Monday with the old man, and once in his home neighborhood, he was able to locate his house. The nephew and Los Angeles police had been searching for the lost man for two days and nights.

MRS. FETTERS DEAD.

Mrs. Hannah Fetters, aged 80 years, died from the effects of old age and paralysis at the Cottage hospital, Sunday morning.

The deceased formerly resided in Santa Ana but for some years had made her home with her grandson, M. I. Greathouse of Van Nuys. She is survived by two sons, Mr. Gates of Venice and another one in South America. The remains were taken by A. C. Fillbach to Santa Ana where funeral services were held Wednesday.

O. E. S. PROGRAM.

The Eastern Star lodge of this city has inaugurated a program of informal entertainment which will be enjoyed each meeting night at the conclusion of the business program. This will take the form of card playing and all members and Eastern Star guests in the city at the time, will be welcomed. On nights of initiation or other special and lengthy business, the card party will not follow.

Purely Personal

Herbert Henning of 203 East Elk avenue, who has been confined to his home for several days on account of illness, is a little improved today.

O. L. Kilborn of 217 West Lomita avenue is confined to his home on account of illness.

Mrs. A. P. Smith of Denver is visiting Mrs. George Smith of 340 West Burchett street for a few days, on her way to La Jolla.

Mrs. Wallace Tupper of 1401 East California street and two children are confined to their home on account of illness.

About 12 members of the Glendale Congregational church are attending the rally and dinner at the First Congregational church of Los Angeles today.

Mrs. A. L. Bryant and son, Albert, of 1635 South San Fernando road, are confined to their home on account of illness.

It is hard to pound sense into an easy mark.

STARS SHINE AT THE T. D. & L.

Noodles Fagan, the international comedian is the featured attraction of the vaudeville road show at the T. D. & L. theatre today. In securing Noodles Fagan and his clever team mate, Elsie, as the headliners on this bill, Meiklejohn and Dunn are particularly fortunate.

The Noodles Fagan company is only one of the attractions which is seen on this well balanced bill of vaudeville and the photoplay, "Nobody," a First National attraction.

Beautiful tropical scenery will be one of the screen features when Norma Talmadge comes to the T. D. and L. theatre Sunday in the First National attraction, "Love's Redemption." This is the picture Miss Talmadge and her company made in the West Indies.

In addition to the Norma Talmadge feature the T. D. and L. theatre offers a special Torchy Comedy, Burton Holmes Travelogue and news weekly of the latest interest, making up an ideal entertainment.
